

review 2

reviewer: rodrigo lages e silva

cartographies of dis-ease:

schizoanalysis, maps, and becoming in the light of foucault's genealogy of the psychological subject and basaglia's democratic psychiatry

authors

michele di salvo

enia, fundação ente nacional para a inteligência artificial, milão, itália

e-mail: mik.disalvo@gmail.com

<https://orcid.org/0000-0002-9531-0591>

how to quote this article:

APA:

Di Salvo, M. (2025). Cartographies of dis-ease: schizoanalysis, maps, and becoming in the light of foucault's genealogy of the psychological subject and basaglia's democratic psychiatry. childhood & philosophy, 21, 1-21. <https://doi.org/10.12957/childphilo.2025.94309>

ABNT:

Di Salvo, Michele. Cartographies of dis-ease: schizoanalysis, maps, and becoming in the light of foucault's genealogy of the psychological subject and basaglia's democratic psychiatry. childhood & philosophy, Rio de Janeiro, v. 21, p. 1-21, 2025. Disponível em: [inserir link]. Acesso em: [inserir data].

1) suitability of article to childhood & philosophy

The article is consistent with the journal policy and scope.

2) relevance and timeliness of the topic

It is a relevant essay although “nixed” in poststructuralist theory. It lacks tuning with current debate on subjectivity, as it articulates theories of the 70s with resistance practices of the same period.

3) argument structure and coherency

3.1. does the abstract adequately summarize the main issues addressed in the article?

Yes. It is well structured and well written.

3.2. does the article fairly reflect current literature?

Despite minors notes I wrote in the commentaries of the doc I would say so. I also think some important literature in Cartography was left aside, mainly: Schizoanalytical Cartographies (Guattari) and Totemic Becomings (Glowzcewski).

3.3. are the objectives of the article well-defined?

Yes.

3.4. are the ideas clear and well-developed?

Yes.

3.5. are the arguments well-founded?

Yes

3.6. are the conclusions expressed clearly?

Yes.

4) other aspects

The text is minimalist in its argumentation. Some ideas would benefit from a deepening, especially on “becoming child”, “cartography” and in the Basaglia experience presentation.

5) comments to the editor (will not be sent to the author)

6) final assessment (result of the evaluation process):

(x) publishable with revisions indicated in the review