The Journal of City Law, journal classified by MEC/CAPES as Qualis A1, Law and registered in the Web of Science, in this issue 02, volume 14, 2022, is pleased to inform that 769 articles, published in all electronic issues of our Journal, were indexed in Scilit: https://www.scilit.net/journal-articles?q=journal_id%3A%28915943%29 .

Scilit - developed and maintained by MDPI - is a free, multidisciplinary academic database that indexes scientific material by pulling the latest data from CrossRef, PubMed and other sources on a daily basis. This means that newly published articles are added to Scilit almost immediately. It is a comprehensive database covering all subjects from arts and humanities, behavioral sciences and social sciences to medicine and pharmacology, physical sciences, mathematics and computer science, chemistry and biology.

In this issue we publish the article "Localization and structure of opportunities: the peripheral environments of social housing developments in the city of Córdoba (Argentina)", by María Cecilia Marengo, Full Professor at FAUD - UNC, independent researcher of CONICET, Institute for Housing Research at FAUD - UNC, group linked to CEUR - CONICET, Professor of the postgraduate program in the Doctorate in Architecture and of the Master's careers in Housing Management and Development and Architectural and Urban Design at the School of Architecture, Urbanism and Design - National University of Cordoba - UNC, Argentina and Ana Laura Elorza, PhD, Master in Housing Management and Development (FAUD UNC), Degree in Social Work, adjunct researcher of CONICET - Housing and Housing Research Institute (FAUD-UNC) and Professor of the Degree in Social Work of the Faculty of Social Sciences of the National University of Cordoba, Argentina.

In this article the authors analyze the geographical localization of different social groups in the city of Cordoba and verify whether it is related to differentiated modalities of access to urban resources present in a given locality, which highlights processes of socio-territorial inequality. The objective of the article is to address the evolution of peripheral urban sectors formed from a public housing policy implemented in the city of Cordoba (Argentina), in relation to the structure of opportunities that unfold in the territory, as an expression of the differential consolidation processes of each neighborhood derived from a particular location in the urban space.

The methodology used is quantitative and comparative, based on the use of Geographic Information Systems (QGIS Software) over which the systematization of the data collected in the field is performed. The results point to differences in terms of urban consolidation, linked to the initial conditions of urbanization and the evolution of environments. These conditions lead to question the role of public housing policy in the construction of the peripheral neighborhood space, the structure of opportunities that unfolds in the process of growth by extension and its relationship with the right to the city.

As in previous issues, in the current volume 14, number 02, we are publishing 20 (twenty) unpublished articles, of which 05 articles by foreign professors: the already mentioned "Localization and structure of opportunities: the peripheral environments of social housing developments in the city of Córdoba (Argentina)", by María Cecilia Marengo, Full Professor at FAUD - UNC, independent researcher of CONICET, Institute for Housing Research at FAUD - UNC, group linked to CEUR CONICET, Professor of the postgraduate program in the Doctorate in Architecture and of the Master's careers in Housing Management and Development and Architectural and Urban Design at the School of Architecture, Urbanism and Design - National University of Cordoba - UNC, Argentina and Ana Laura Elorza, PhD, Master in Housing Management and Development (FAUD UNC), Degree in Social Work, adjunct researcher of CONICET - Housing and Housing Research Institute (FAUD-UNC) and Professor of the Degree in Social Work of the Faculty of Social Sciences of the National University of Córdoba, Argentina; "Poverty in the americas: comparative study on the regressivity of economic, social, cultural and environmental rights for afro-descendant people in Colombia, Peru and Chile" by Yennesit Palacios Valencia, PhD in Human Rights and Development from the Pablo de Olavide University of Sevilla; PhD student at the Autonomous University of Madrid, Doctoral Program in Law, Government and Public Policy, Spain; "Urban law: object, objectives and disciplinary autonomy" by Jaime Alfredo Alarcón Zambrano, Architect, Bachelor in Political and Social Sciences, Lawyer for the Courts and Tribunals of the Republic, Master in Educational Teaching and Research and Doctor in Social and Legal Sciences, Ph.D, Cum Laude, from the University of Córdoba, Spain and Professor at the San Gregorio de Portoviejo University - USGP, Portoviejo, Ecuador; "Metabolism of water management in the city of Toluca, Mexico" by María Estela Orozco-Hernández, PhD in Geography, National Autonomous University of Mexico (UNAM), professor of exclusive dedication "F", Faculty of Urban and Regional Planning, Center for Research and Advanced Studies in Territorial Planning (CEPLAT), Autonomous University of the State of Mexico, Mexico by Arturo Venancio-Flores, PhD in Social Sciences, El Colegio Mexiquense, professor of exclusive dedication "C", Faculty of Urban and Regional Planning of the Center for Research and Advanced Studies in Territorial Planning (CEPLAT), Autonomous University of the State of Mexico, Mexico and of Socorro Flores Gutiérrez, Specialist and Master in Geomatics. Center for Research in Geospatial Information Sciences (CentroGeo). PhD student in Urbanism at the Faculty of Urban and Regional Planning, Autonomous University of the State of Mexico, Mexico; and "Emptying out, filling up and resisting. The social production of space in Vallcarca, Barcelona (2002-2018)" by Juliana Marcus, PhD in Social Sciences and Licentiate in Sociology from the University of Buenos Aires. Adjunct Researcher at CONICET and Researcher at the Gino Germani Research Institute, Professor of Sociology of Culture, Sociologist, Faculty of Social Sciences, University of Buenos Aires - UBA, Argentina.

In our Essays section we published 05 (five) unpublished essays, three of them about the right to the city: “For a city sensitive to what is different. Thinking about public policies from a symbiosis between the right to the city and the right to difference”, “Ride hailing services apps: public price and free market according to municipal laws” e “The production of urban space and the fight for the right to decent housing and the right to the city: an ethnography of a woman from the northeast of Brazil in São Paulo”.

In this issue of the journal we have increased our body of reviewers/evaluators, from many states of the country and also from many foreign countries, to a total of more than 700 reviewers/evaluators.

We also publish, for the immediate consultation of our readers, the links to the various national and international indexers of journals and periodicals where our Journal of City Law is indexed.

We thank, as always, all readers, authors, reviewers and collaborators for their collaboration and trust and for the always excellent work done. We always remind you that submissions to the Journal of City Law are permanent and must be done through the system, directly on the journal's page.

Good reading to all!
