In this issue we are also pleased to publish the article "Globalization, market, and money: what Roman civilization can teach economic and commercial history", by Guillermo Suárez Blázquez, Accredited Professor of Roman Law and Contemporary Legal Systems, University of Vigo, Spain.

The article "Globalization, market, and money: what Roman civilization can teach economic and commercial history" undertakes an interdisciplinary assessment of the economic and legal foundations of the ancient world and, in particular, classical Roman civilization. These constitute the guiding principles of business life and the global business world today. The importance of this original research initiative is to attempt to provide universal, solid, and timeless scientific pillars and values in order to reliably understand the economic history and industrial corporate bodies of our interconnected world.

As in previous issues, in the current volume 15, number 01, 2022, we are publishing 15 (fifteen) unpublished articles, of which 04 (four) are foreign articles: the already mentioned "Globalization, market, and money: what Roman civilization can teach economic and commercial history", by Guillermo Suárez Blázquez, Accredited Professor of Roman Law and Contemporary Legal Systems. University of Vigo, Spain; "Philosophy of law and constitutionality: the intrusion of ideologies through illegitimate laws" by Jose Luis Vilchez, PhD in experimental psychology and behavioral neuroscience, MA in cognitive and behavioral neuroscience, and full professor at the University of Granada, España; "Bourdieu and Žižek: Reflections on law, symbolic violence and language", by Juan Cajas, Master in Political Sociology from the Institute "Dr. Mora" and doctor in Social Anthropology from the National Autonomous University of Mexico (UNAM). Full time professor-researcher at UAEM, full professor B. Guest Professor of the Doctorate in Law at the Universidad Autónoma de Querétaro (UAQ), Mexico; "Human neuro-rights" by Favio Farinella, Master in Professional Education UNESCO (UNESCO Center, San Sebastian and Paris); Master in Legal and Economic Aspects of New Technologies (UNMDP); Ph. D. candidate at Roehampton University (UK) and from Elena Evgenyevna Gulyaeva, Associate Professor at the Department of International Law, Diplomatic Academy of the Russian Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Russia; "Public morals and judges", by Carlos Manuel Rosales Garcia, Doctor of Law from the University of Chile and Rafael Barona Márquez, Bachelor of Law from the National Autonomous University of Mexico and Master of Criminal Procedural Law from the National Institute of Higher Studies in Criminal Law (INDEPAC), Mexico.

We have also published in our Monographs Section a study called "Nothing about us without us": social movements and the rupture of modern disability paradigm", by Beatriz Fracaro, Master's candidate in the Post-Graduation Program in Fundamental Rights and Democracy of the UniBrasil - University Center, in Curitiba-PR. Fellow of the Program of Support to Post-Graduation of Private Education Institutions (PROSUP), of CAPES and Marcos Augusto Maliska, PhD in Law. Professor of the Post-Graduate Program in Law - Master's and Doctorate, of UniBrasil - University Center, in Curitiba-PR. Federal Attorney.

The monograph analyzes the relevance and influence of social movements, nationally and internationally, in the consolidation of the social model, which operates a rupture in the typically modern definition of disability. To this end, it emphasizes the process of transition from the medical model of integration to the social model of inclusion in Brazil. Developed through the deductive method and the bibliographical procedure, the research allowed us to conclude that the social participation of people with disabilities in the Constituent Assembly, as well as in the drafting of the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, contributed significantly to the progress in the inclusive treatment of these people, especially through the opening of the 1988 Federal Constitution to pluralism and the positivization of the social paradigm in the Convention, internalized in the Brazilian legal system with constitutional status. However, it should be noted that full inclusion is not yet a reality, and that its realization requires the undertaking of mutual efforts between society and the state.

In our Essays Section we published 04 (four) essays, being 02 (two) essays on collective public policies: "The pandemic of disinformation: covid-19 and social media - from technological fascination to (self-)regulation" and "Prisons beyond the body: the prison situation of transgender woman and transvestites in the state of Sergipe – Brazil".

In this issue of the Journal we have maintained our body of reviewers/evaluators, from several states of the country and foreign professors, in a total of more than 650 (six hundred and fifty) reviewers/evaluators. We also publish, for immediate consultation by the readers, the links of the several national and international indexers of Journals and periodicals where our Journal Quaestio Iuris is indexed. We thank, as always, all readers, authors, reviewers and collaborators for their collaboration and trust and for the always excellent work done. We always remind you that submissions to Journal Quaestio Iuris are permanent and must be done through the system, directly in the Journal's page.

Good reading to all!
