Editorial for vol. 09-1 (2017)

The Journal of City Law, a journal ranked by MEC / CAPES as Qualis A1, Law and registered in the Web of Science, is pleased to inform all its readers that, as of September 2016, it has been included in the Directory of Open Access Journals - DOAJ. Our Journal is also indexed in EBSCO Legal Source since January 2014.

We published in this issue the article "Responses to food waste in a sharing economy: we have fully transitioned to participatory culture, and digital technology is key driver of that transition" of Professor Margherita Poto, an administrative law professor at the Università degli Studi di Torino, Italy and Visiting Scholar at Tsinghua University, School of Law, Beijing, China, and Lucia Polackova, Ph.D. in Agricultural Law at Sant'Anna School of Advanced Studies, In Pisa, Italy.

In this article "Responses to food waste in a sharing economy: we have fully transitioned to participatory culture, and digital technology is key driver of that transition" is discussed the need to find solutions for waste in general and for food waste, in order to solve the problem of food waste in a shared economy. Particular from a legal point of view. The analysis begins with some reflections on the need to update the expressions used in this new area of research, as well as to spell out new terms that can support academic studies and policy makers.

A relevant part of the work is devoted to the analysis of virtuous models of sustainable development, where three key elements play a central role: the mechanisms of a sharing economy, the new actors in containing consumerism and waste, and the participatory dynamics that govern these actions.

As in the previously published issues, in the present volume 09, number 01, the first of the year 2017, we publish 12 (twelve) unpublished articles, being 03 articles of foreign teachers: the already mentioned "Responses to food waste in a sharing economy: we Have a transition to participatory culture, and digital technology is the key driver of that transition" by Professor Margherita Poto, an administrative law professor at the Università degli Studi di Torino, Italy and Visiting Scholar at Tsinghua University, School of Law, Beijing, China, And Lucia Polackova, PhD student in Agricultural Law at the Sant'Anna School of Advanced Studies in Pisa, Italy; "Processes of urbanization, public policies and land rent generation in the city of Córdoba, Argentina" by Julieta María Capdevielle, PhD from the National University of Córdoba, Argentina, Assistant Researcher of the National Council of Science and Technology of the Nation (CONICET) and Adjunct Professor of the Degree of Geography of the National University of Córdoba, Argentina and "Analytical Framework for the Rapid Transit Bus System - BRT " by Madisson Yojan Carmona Rojas, Master in Social Sciences and Humanities from Universidad Autónoma Metropolitana - Cuajimalpa, Mexico and Professor of the Degree in Social Sciences at the National Pedagogical University (UPN) and University Of Cundinamarca (UDEC), Colombia.
